NOTICE TO STUDENTS OF THE GHANA SCHOOL OF LAW

It has come to our attention that pirated copies of the 3rd Edition of The Practical Draftsman authored by B.J. da Rocha and C.H. K. Lodoh have been reproduced and circulated among students of the Ghana School of Law. Please note that this is copyrighted material and illegal to reproduce without the express permission of its holders.

Investigations conducted by the Criminal Investigations Department (CID) of the Ghana Police have confirmed the involvement of certain individuals in the sale and distribution of these unauthorized copies. The matter remains under active investigation, and appropriate action is being taken in accordance with the law.

As you know, an intentional breach of copyright, or piracy, by an aspiring lawyer can constitute serious professional misconduct that violates fundamental legal ethics. Lawyers are by law, expected to uphold the law and maintain the integrity of the profession, and an intentional violation of intellectual property rights is directly contrary to these duties and as aspiring lawyers may place your ability to be called to the Bar at risk.

We wish to caution all students that the sale, purchase, or distribution of pirated academic material is a criminal offence and a violation of academic integrity. Students are therefore advised to desist from any dealings in such books and to obtain copies only from the Law School Bookshop, which is the sole authorized distributor of The Practical Draftsman (3rd Edition) on your campus.

We appreciate the cooperation of the school community in helping to protect intellectual property and uphold the integrity of legal education in Ghana.
